MURDERED IN OHIO.

Former Gettysburg Man Killed by Negro Who Resisted Arrest.

Harvey J. Hake, a former resident of Gettysburg, was shot by a negro while resisting arrest at Covington on last Thursday and died immediately from the wounds received. Mr. Hake was village marshal of Covington, Ohio, about 37 years. Bert Clark, a negro, was charged with an offense and Officer Hake went to arrest him. The negro resisted and in the encounter brought to his help a shot gun and discharged the gun at Mr. Hake, literally blowing his head off. Clark fled to his home near Covington followed by a posse. He barricaded himself in his place and resisted the attacking party the entire night. In the morning he walked out of the house with his baby in his arms and surrendered himself to the police. A charge of murder was at once preferred against him.

Mr. Hake was a native of Adams county and was aged 55 years, 2 months and 27 days. He left this county when a young man, settling at Covington, Ohio. He was a son of the late James and Martha Hake of near this place. He married in the West and leaves his wife, one daughter and a son, Miss Madge Hake and Gordon Hake. He is survived by a brother and two sisters, Calvin P. Hake of Pennsylvania, Mrs. E. S. Faber and Mrs. Murray Sheads of Gettysburg.

Two Civil Cases to be Tried—License Court Concluded on Monday—Decision Reserved.

The January Court.

The January court to cover two weeks if necessary is likely to dispose of all business in a few days' time. The criminal calendar is a short one. There are but two cases continued from the last session. There may be a half dozen new cases, those already returned by the justices are as follows:

Com. vs. Robert Pierce, charged on oath of Chas. H. Wilson with begging.

Com. vs. Wm. Sweeney, charged on oath of Chief of Police Smiley with malicious mischief. Defendant had started a fire at the Kelly & Oylor coal yards in the western part of the town.

Com. vs. Lawrence Rutter, charged on oath of H. A. Waltman with taking an East Berlin Creamery check worth $13.69 and having it cashed.

Com. vs. John Webber, charged with non-support of his mother, Mrs. Nettie McNeal, on the oath of Mrs. McNeal's daughter, Mrs. Joel Woodward.

Arthur Cunningham will be called upon to answer his assault upon Kathryn Eckenrode. He has admitted the deed and it is not likely that there will be a trial.

One or two trials at the most can be expected from the criminal calendar.

Civil Trial List.

There are eight cases on the Trial List of civil cases. Of these four have been continued as follows:

The Garland Co., an Ohio corporation, vs. Robert Godfrey, assumpt.

L. Butt vs. Lillie M. Miller, E. Carson Miller, a trespass case.

Western Maryland Fy. Co. vs. A. A. Grover, assumpt. involving rebate question.

J. E. C. Miller and Wm. D. Himes vs. William Harrist, appeal from J. L. Lill, J. P.

Two of the cases have been settled.

B. H. Johns vs. J. E. Miller, J. L. Miller, appeal from V. H. Lilly, J. P.

G. H. Eckenrode vs. W. E. Eichenberger, appeal from D. A. Thomas, J. P.

Two civil cases remain to be tried and both are likely to be disposed of by juries.

C. E. Hoffman vs. Dr. E. D. Hudson, is trespass case for damages growing out of an automobile accident on Baltimore street a year or two ago.

Charles E. Shultz vs. Columbia Flint Company of Aspers, a corporation. The action is in trespass for damages, plaintiff bringing suit for $10,000 damages for injuries sustained at the elevator in the defendant's plant.

Wind Up of License Court.

The hearing of the application of C. B. Tate for tavern license for the Washington Hotel, and John N. Weaver for the restaurant license for his place on Carlisle street consumed last Friday afternoon, all of Saturday, and the arguments were concluded by Monday noon of this week.

Prior to the hearing of the witnesses Judge McPherson announced that the number of witnesses would be limited to six, that that number would be ample for the presentation of the arguments for and against the licenses. That the great number of witnesses heard the previous year had consumed more time than was necessary for the information of the court.

The witnesses called by C. B. Tate were Ken S. Lynch of the Lincoln Way Hotel, C. Tyson Tipton, J. Harry Holtzworth, Edward Schriver, Fred McCammon, C. J. Deardorff, and Harry Wortz. The witnesses spoke of a necessity for a European hotel where meals could be had at all hours with something to drink.

The witnesses called by John N. Weaver were George W. Buohl, William Hartman, Louis Mizell, Melchior Sachs, Edward Menchey, and Conrad Cluck. They expressed opinions as to the necessity of a restaurant where farmers and others could go in their working clothes and eat and have something to drink.

The remonstrants took the position that the burden was on the applicants to show affirmatively that there was a necessity and that they were fit persons to whom licenses should issue and it was contended that these facts had not been shown affirmatively.

An interesting development occurred in the Weaver case. On cross-examination it came out that the applicant stated in his petition that he was owner of place, but at the time of filing of the petition he had sold property through W. L. Hafer to Mrs. Louis D. Hafer of Hanover, and when the agreement of sale was produced to show that the date of sale was in November and making of application in December, the agreement further showed that the sale of property was to take place on January 2, and that if license was granted Weaver had to pay the owner $55 rental a year.

THROAT CUT WITH PENKNIFE.

Boy Acts in Jealous Rage Then Gives Himself up to Sheriff.

In a jealous rage Arthur Cunningham, an 18 year old boy, made an outrageous assault on his best girl, Katherine Eckenrode, 17 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Eckenrode at her home on South Washington street on Thursday evening. The two had been keeping company for several years. Recently there had been some misunderstanding between them and the girl asked the boy to stop coming to see her.

The boy brooded over this until he worked himself into a frenzy. He bought a new pocket knife for the deed, and going to the home of the girl Thursday evening about seven o'clock he called her out. When she told him that he should stop coming to see her he attacked her and slashed her across the throat with the knife.

The wound took twelve stitches to close. Dr. C. G. Crist dressing the wound. The slash opened the throat to the jugular vein and windpipe but neither were pierced and for this reason it is thought the injury will not prove fatal. The young girl shows every indication of recovery from the frightful wound.

Young Cunningham made his way to the jail after committing the deed and gave himself up to Sheriff Hartman, declaring he had killed somebody. The boy's parents say that he had been depressed and moody for days but would not state the cause and would not go to a physician as they urged.

Katherine Eckenrode is a senior in the Parochial School and is quite pretty. The boy had never threatened to do her injury but had declared he would kill himself if she did not allow him to call and see her.

On the day before Christmas a daughter was born to Mrs. Mosser and the mother was thought to be on a fair road to recovery. She had been able to be about in her home and Friday afternoon while enjoying having the babe in her arms she was taken ill and at 5.45 expired. The cause of death was pronounced to be an obstruction in the circulation of the blood to the lungs. Mrs. Mosser was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan. She attended Wilson College and was a graduate of Mrs. Smallwood's School of Washington, D. C. She was married to Mr. Mosser Sept. 15, 1915, and had resided in

Practical Economy

Baking powders made from alum or phosphate may be bought for a trifle less than Royal Baking Powder, which is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes.

Alum powders are not only cheap, but they differ greatly in leavening power.

If a cheap baking powder is used for a fine cake and the cake turns out a failure there is a waste of costly materials worth more than a whole can of the cheap baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder produces the finest food, and its use therefore, results in an actual saving.

Willis Jacob Bollinger, son of Mrs. Lela E. Bollinger, died very suddenly on last Saturday at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Boyd, at Mummaburg, aged 1 month and 19 days. Funeral services were held at the home of the grandparents on Monday by Rev. D. T. Koser, interment at Flohr's Church.

Dr. Charles M. McLaughlin, a graduate of Gettysburg College in the class of 1885, and a well known physician and surgeon of Greencastle, died at his home Saturday afternoon. Besides his widow two sons survive, Charles K. and William Dr. McLaughlin was a member of the Franklin County Medical Society, the National Medical Association and the Masonic Fraternity.

Dr. Allen Myers of York, formerly of Hampton, was stricken with apoplexy while in his office last Friday morning and fell to the floor, death following immediately. Dr. Myers had been in failing health for past year. About two weeks ago he became worse and a week ago he was compelled to give up his practice. He was 65 years old. Dr. Myers had been practicing medicine for 43 years, having graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1874. He was born in Germany and when still a child was brought to this country by his parents who immigrated to Baltimore. He received his early education in the public schools of that city. He then went to the upper end of York county where he taught school. He read medicine under the late Dr. William P. Nebinger of Lewisberry. Upon graduating from Jefferson, Dr. Myers took up practice in Newberrytown. Later he went to Dover and after several years moved to Hampton, Adams county. He served as postmaster at Hampton during Benjamin Harrison's administration as President. Twenty-one years ago he went to York and had been practicing there since. For a period of nearly 16 years he served as a United States pension examiner in York county. He was a member of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, York. He was a member of the York County Medical Society, was also affiliated with York Lodge No. 47, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Independent Order of Americans. Dr. Myers is survived by two daughters and six sons as follows: Mrs. W. C. Trimmer of Gettysburg, Mrs. Raymond Phillips of East Berlin, Prof. Robert S. Myers of Ridgewood, N. J., Arthur C. Myers of Deland, Fla., Vernon S. Myers of Johnstown, Russell E. Myers of Richmond, Va., William N. and Lloyd M. Myers, both of York. Two sisters, Mrs. Augustus Kornman and Mrs. W. C. Sinns, both of Baltimore, also survive. Rev. Albert Bell conducted the funeral services on Monday afternoon with interment in Mt. Rose Cemetery, York.

Simple Arithmetic.

A little boy who had not learned how to count one day received three apples from a friend.

He was very pleased and told his mother afterward.

"How many apples did you get?" she asked.

"I don't know just how many mother," he replied, "but I got one in the middle and two outside."—New York Times

Not Guilty.

Little Charley had been spanked by his mother for stealing cookies. His cousin, who was present, wishing to comfort him, said: "Poor Charley! You have my sympathy." Looking up through his tears, he protested: "I have not! I didn't touch it!"—Boston Transcript.

The Ancient Mayas.

It is urged by an archaeologist that the Mayas, who once inhabited America, had a civilization as far advanced as that of any early people except the Greeks. The dwellers in the jungles of Yucatan, Guatemala and Honduras are believed to be their descendants.

PROBABLY THE BEST SPECIMEN OF GERMAN SHEPHERD DOG IN THE UNITED STATES.

CHAMPION LOTTE V. EDELWEISS.
Judged the Best Entrant in the Recent Specialty Show, Held in New York. She is Owned by Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Wanner, Hempstead, L. I.

New York.—The German Shepherd dog is preparing to celebrate his tenth anniversary in this country.

Known only in certain sections of the country these famous high-bred dogs are making a strong bid for popularity among lovers of good dog-flesh.

Recently the second annual specialty show of the German Shepherd Dog Club of America, held at Madison Square Garden, brought out 110 entrants, representing the cream of the breed in America.

Its lineage kept intact for hundreds of years in the Old World, the German Shepherd is not a new breed, as many in this country suppose, but an extremely old one. Europe's great war has done a great deal to illustrate the wonderful work of the German Shepherd because of the remarkable advance made in Red Cross work, the dog playing a leading part in searching for wounded on the deserted fields of battle.

Comparatively few people have any real knowledge of the dog's characteristics as a breed, its disposition or essential points. A few months ago a farmer living a few miles from Detroit shot and killed a prized German Shepherd, thinking it was a wolf.

The great majority know its appearance in a general way and have a hazy idea that it is called a police dog, but just what a German Shepherd really is, or what its work consists of, few people have any real knowledge.

It is a native of Germany and is closely related to the Belgian, Dutch and other varieties of shepherd dogs found in Europe, the main difference being that the German Dogs have been bred scientifically and are second to no other breed in the world for purity of strain and fixity of type.

A combination of most of the best qualities of all large breeds of dogs forms the characteristics and disposition of the German Dog. It is gentle, obedient and faithful to the last degree, absolutely fearless, possesses a wonderful memory and is unusually fond of children.

Its aid to the police, military and Red Cross departments has been proven so conclusively by actual use that nothing needs to be said concerning it.

Camera Men and War Pictures.
The camera man in search of lively war pictures often enjoys the protection of a special guard, which is especially detailed to protect him. Since the camera does not shoot as far as a gun, the photographer often works at an immense disadvantage. The camera makes a conspicuous target and often draws the enemy's fire. The special camera guard, which originated in one of the early Villa campaigns in Mexico, consists of two picked men, perhaps more, who accompany the photographer or skirmish ahead of him to render his position as safe as possible when the camera is set up. Many thousands of feet of war film have been made while sharpshooters on both sides kept up a steady and effective fire. A guard of two American Indians, both crack shots, were employed for many weeks to protect L. M. Burrud, an American camera man, who accompanied Villa in one of his campaigns. The Indians' stealth and daring in reconnoitering the ground in advance often proved indispensable.—"The Camera Man," by Francis Arnold Collins.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.
Handkerchief Menace.
The pocket handkerchief should be abolished, because it is a source of infection long after a person has recovered from such diseases as infantile paralysis and even common colds, says Dr. F. Robbins in the Medical Record. "The day will come," he says, "when the customary cotton rag is replaced by the cheap and clean Japanese paper napkin, which is burned after it has been used. Infants and children are helpless against the rubbing of strange handkerchiefs over their perspiring and grimy faces. The public roller towel of the past was innocuous as compared to the family pocket handkerchief. Bitter experience will drive home the lesson that neglected noses, mouths and throats are largely, if not exclusively, responsible for the ultimate crippling of the unfortunate victims of disease and ignorance."

SHOPS AND PLANTS FAVOR INDUSTRIAL BETTERMENT WORK

Actively Aid Welfare Plans of Every Description For Employees.

PHILANTHROPY NOT INTENT.
Comfort and Contentment of the Workers Considered Paramount.

Hundreds of millions of dollars have been expended during the past decade by American manufacturers for those forms of industrial betterment, in behalf of employees, that are generally classed as philanthropic or beyond the mere requirements of laws and contracts.

Decent manufacturers—and they are in the vast majority—as are the decent people of other classes—are opposed to grinding child labor, and they strive to pay a living wage to all of their employees. They go much farther than that, as a study of American industry will show. They devote time, money and effort to provide every possible supplementary means for promoting the convenience, the comfort, the health, contentment and happiness of their workers and of the families of employees. Very few manufacturers consider such work or expenditure to be philanthropy, but, rather, a necessary feature of their business. While their motives may be as altruistic as those of the average of mankind, they find that it is good, from the business point of view, to promote as far as possible the welfare of their employees. Industrial betterment pays.

Industrial betterment means an attempt to provide the best kind of working and living conditions, and it implies the co-operative responsibility of the wage earner and the employer in bringing those conditions about and in improving them from time to time. It is not a dole to be handed to the wage earner, but is a token of that spirit of mutuality which, under right conditions, should permeate industry.

A thorough description of industrial betterment activities in the United States would require more space than is contained in the most voluminous encyclopaedias to be found in the libraries. Indeed, volumes might be written about the welfare work of a single corporation alone—the National Cash Register Company, for instance, or the International Harvester Company, the United States Steel Corporation, Cheney Brothers, the Curtis Publishing Company, the Bethlehem Steel Company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Eastman Kodak Company, any one of the leading railroad companies, the principal banks, Wanamakers, or any of a host of other concerns which have developed activities of the sort. There is hardly a concern in the country doing business on a fairly extensive scale that has not initiated some form of industrial betterment for its employees. The honors do not go to the larger companies exclusively either, for many of the smaller business units have developed this side of their activities to a remarkable extent. Naturally it is easier for the larger corporations to put highly trained specialists in charge of the various branches of industrial betterment work.

The fundamentals of industrial betterment are observed in furnishing pleasant, sanitary, safe working conditions. Educational and entertainment features, facilities for study and recreation, special opportunities for the exercise of thrift and provision tending to remove the dread of and to mitigate the sufferings occasioned by sickness, disability or invalidity are matters which next receive attention. Well lighted, well ventilated and otherwise pleasant and safe working places, restaurants, reading rooms and libraries, rest rooms, emergency kits and hospitals, club rooms, assembly rooms, gymnasiums, lockers and bathing facilities, recreation grounds, bonus and profit sharing plans, special housing accommodations, facilities for the purchase of homes on easy payments, discounts in the purchase of goods, industrial and other educational classes, lectures for entertainment or instruction, moving pictures, excursions, field days, medical attention, safety committees for accident and fire prevention, sick pay, disability and invalidity funds, insurance or benefit associations and pensions are some of the customary features of industrial betterment work, the variety of which has no limit.

Tens of thousands of lives are saved each year and hundreds of thousands of lesser accidents are prevented annually through the excellent prevention campaign and feature of industrial betterment.

The Eastman Kodak Company in five years reduced the accidents in its plants by over 75 per cent per annum through a progressive safety campaign. The Pennsylvania Railroad in ten months decreased the serious injuries of its 32,242 shop employees over 63 per cent by the installation of safety devices and by the constant instruction of the workmen in exercising due caution. As a result of its safety campaign the United States Steel Corporation reduced serious and fatal accidents in its various plants by 46 per cent since 1906. Each year 2,300 of the men employed by the corporation escape who would have been injured under the previous conditions.

GET TOGETHER FOR PERMANENT PROSPERITY.

Every man and woman engaged in American factories, mills and mines, whether they know English or speak it, are naturalized or intend to become citizens, have a direct interest in maintaining industrial prosperity. When times are good, all workers should not only be thrifty in habit and lay up a little something for possible rainy days, but they should do all they can to keep the good times with us.

Simply because your language is different from that of the foreman, overseer, superintendent, manager or owner of the plant in which you earn a living, is no excuse for misunderstanding your own common interest in prosperity by hating your partner in your own industry or listening to and following the gospel of discussion and violence which selfish agitators so often preach.

Do not blindly follow the man who tells you how hard your lot is. Often he is doing so untruthfully and for the purpose of getting you to contribute membership money for his own support in idleness. Agitators get rich by preying on the men in American industry, whom they urge into unlawful or harmful acts by misrepresenting conditions or holding out foolish and false promises of better things if they follow their orders. You know conditions yourself, and you know or ought to know that the man or men whom the agitator who pictures your employer as an inhuman driving machine is actually a partner with you, interested in having the plant or industry successful.

The more successful your plant or industry becomes, the more room for you to grow with it there will be. It should be your feeling, then, that you will not do as little as you may find it convenient to do, but to do just as much as you possibly can do, and then reasonably expect to share in the rewards that always come to the efficient worker.

Do not be a clock watcher in the factory. Those who wait for hours to strike or whistles to blow and "soldier" at the bench, machine or in the office, never get ahead in the ranks of industry. They never get any more pay because they are not worth any more, and often are worth less than they get. Remember the old adage that a man who never does any more or as much as he gets paid for, never gets paid for any more than he does.—Industrial Conservation, N. Y.

PUTTING BUSINESS RIGHT WITH THE PUBLIC.

A few years ago some big industrial organizations and certain railroad employed business tactics which, according to the popular idea, would make the financial adventures of Pizarro, Morgan or Captain Kidd look as amateurish as the verbal exploits of Bobby Make-Believe.

All are more or less acquainted with the details. We will concede that there were some glaring abuses, but the public when it came to apply a remedy ignored the fact that these were peculiar to comparatively few institutions and instead of tackling the trouble where it lay furiously assailed everything classifiable as business—the trust magnate, the independent manufacturer ready and anxious to obey the law, the small retailer, a law abiding and useful citizen—the innocent and the guilty suffering alike. Seemingly the law was invoked not to regulate, but to persecute.

There could be but one result. Business was demoralized, and the whole country has felt the evil effects. Now the public is beginning to realize its error and in a rather grudging way is making some concessions.

Business is being permitted to speak for itself, and a movement has been instituted by the leading business men of the country under the title of the National Industrial Conservation Movement for the purpose of repairing the damage that has been done. Nothing revolutionary is contemplated. The plan is simply to educate the public by taking it into the business man's confidence. Meetings will be held in various trade and industrial centers. All classes of citizens will be invited. The purpose of these meetings is to give the public a new and correct viewpoint as to the effects of drastic legislation and restriction of business on the prosperity of the country. Every effort will be made to give the public a clear view of the problems and difficulties which beset business.

Special favors are not sought through these meetings, only fair play. It is believed that once the citizen grasps the situation his whole attitude toward business will change and that he will readily co-operate toward bringing about better conditions.

Commercial and other civic organizations and the local press are already showing great interest in this movement, and it is reasonable to believe that much good will come from it.—Industrial Conservation, N. Y.

Common Capitalists.
Every man or woman who possesses a dollar or owns a set of tools is a capitalist. People generally make the mistake of thinking that the only form of capital in existence is the national currency—the dollar, franc, ruble, mark, lire or pound sterling. Yet everybody knows that many a successful business man's only original capital was brains, knowledge, ability, determination or ingenuity. It would be well for more people to recognize this truth before abetting, either by action or attitude, ceaseless efforts on the part of some political or other self-seekers, to hobble business men and industrial development. Such is the spirit of industrial patriotism which is needed in America.—Industrial Conservation, N. Y.

This development resulted in an argument to the Court that the swearing that applicant was owner when in fact he had sold place, was evidence that applicant was not fit to receive license. J. D. 1916 Auto Licenses Good to Feb. 1.

State Highway Commissioner Black has issued a notice extending the life of the 1916 automobile license plates to February 1. The Prison Labor Commission is running behind on deliveries of 1917 tags to the department and the notice was necessitated by the failure to catch up on deliveries.

The Commissioner also issued a notice to holders of non-paid operators' licenses warning them not to destroy or throw away the postal registration card being sent them this year instead of the card formerly sent in an envelope. The Post-office Department will not return postal cards to the sender; consequently the State Highway Department has no means of knowing whether or not they have been received. A number of persons to whom the postal registration cards have been sent have intimated they did not know what they were, did not stop to read them, and threw them away. Duplicates have been issued to these persons.

Commissioner Black has also notified the automobile commissioners in adjoining States that Pennsylvania had been compelled to extend the life of the 1916 automobile license plates because of the failure of the Prison Labor Commission to deliver the 1917 plates.

Equity Case of the Lafears.

Hon. Daniel F. Lafear and his son, Stuart B. Lafear, of York, are defendants in a cross-suit brought by the American Caramel Company, in the equity case which the Lafears began against the company last winter. The cross bill was filed January 1, 1917, and seeks an accounting from Daniel F. Lafear which would amount to thousands of dollars. If the company be successful in its demands, the cross bill sets forth allegations of fraud and unfair dealing in connection with the suit brought by William F. Bidlack to the American Caramel Company, of which shares of the preferred and common stock of the company are owned by the Lafears.

At the time the transaction occurred, Daniel F. Lafear was president and Stuart B. Lafear was vice-president of the American Caramel Company. The cross bill alleges that the company was organized by Daniel F. Lafear and that he was president of the company when he made an agreement with William F. Bidlack to purchase the company. The bill alleges that the company was organized by Daniel F. Lafear and that he was president of the company when he made an agreement with William F. Bidlack to purchase the company. The bill alleges that the company was organized by Daniel F. Lafear and that he was president of the company when he made an agreement with William F. Bidlack to purchase the company.

The cross bill calls upon Mr. Lafear for an accounting of his profits on the deal, for certain moneys collected on coupons of Caramel Company bonds by him, for his and Mr. Bidlack's benefit, for certain other moneys paid out at his instance on coupons not authorized by the board to be handed over to Mr. Bidlack by him, for $18,000 of bonds which the bill alleges he paid over to Mr. Bidlack in excess of the amount he was authorized by the board of directors to pay over, for certain money he received for common stock of the Rodda Company which was to accompany the preferred stock without cost to the company, and also calls on him and his son, Stuart B. Lafear, for an accounting for certain value received by Stuart B. Lafear for common stock which was to pass with the preferred without cost to the Caramel Company.

The bill specifically states that it does not aver that William C. Bidlack had any notice or knowledge of the several fraudulent acts complained of and set forth of the said Daniel F. Lafear and Stuart B. Lafear.

The cross bill is signed and sworn to by C. R. Weeden, now president of the American Caramel Company.

The answer of the Lafears filed yesterday afternoon contains a complete denial of any fraud or wrongdoing. D. F. Lafear denies that he had any agreement with Mr. Bidlack to purchase the Rodda Company stock for their joint benefit and induce the Caramel Company to buy it at an excess over the cost, and asserts that he investigated and considered the proposed purchase of the Rodda Company stock and in the exercise of his honest and best judgment and for the benefit and advantage of the Caramel Company, advised and recommended the purchase in harmony with the judgment and action of the other directors, and that he delivered the bonds of the company strictly in accordance with the authority conferred upon him by the board of directors. The answer denies emphatically that the resolution was fraudulently or erroneously recorded upon the minutes, as alleged but asserts that the minutes were truly and accurately entered and recorded as passed and agreed upon by the directors.

Medical Society Advocate Hospital.

Dr. Eugene Higin of East Berlin, was elected president of the Adams County Medical Association, which held its annual meeting Jan. 12, in the parlors of the Gettysburg Hotel. Dr. Elgin succeeds Dr. T. C. Miller of Abbotstown.

The other officers chosen were: Vice President, Dr. F. A. Miller of East Berlin; Second Vice President, Dr. H. S. Crouse of Littlestown; Secretary, Dr. Henry Stewart of Gettysburg; Censor, Dr. William Wolf of Arendtsville.

The association devoted the most of its time to the development of plans for the ensuing year, and the discussion of papers.

The physicians gave their approval to a movement to establish a hospital at Gettysburg and Dr. McCrea Pickson is at the head of the movement.

There is no question of the need of a hospital in this town. Our people needing hospital treatment or attention such as can be best given in a hospital must be taken to York, Carlisle, Chambersburg and Harrisburg, and frequently they go as far away as Baltimore and Philadelphia. The trips are frequently at a decided disadvantage to patients in debilitated condition. It would certainly be a great advantage to this town and county to have the conveniences and help of a hospital at Gettysburg.

A hospital is a blessing to a town and while the burden of its upkeep would fall on the community and such state help as might be given, yet to start such a project there is need of one liberal giver. That is the way many hospitals have been started and it should be a hopeful outlook to find that one liberal giver, either in or out of this town, who would give the movement a great big boost, the boost that would put it over. Let us hope that this big boost will be found and found at an early date.

Mothers' Assistance Fund.

The movement known as the mother's pension has become officially known as the Mother Assistance Fund, half of which is paid by the State and half by the County. This department has entered its fourth year in the State and the third year in Adams county. Adams county has the eleventh county to take advantage of the state appropriation for the purpose and there are now approximately 100 of the 67 that have accepted the mother's assistance plan in the counties that have not accepted it. Adams county has had a total of 1,000 applications for the mother's pension and 1,000 have been granted.

The Adams County Board of Directors, composed of Mrs. W. Arch. McClean, chairman; Dr. D. P. McPherson, secretary; and Mrs. Wm. R. Baker, treasurer, have acted upon a number of applications for assistance to mothers. At the present time there are fourteen mothers in the county receiving assistance. The legal requirements were at first misunderstood and a number of applications were received that the law did not cover. The assistance applies only to mothers, widows of deceased and in-laws husbands who have children under fourteen years who must go to school. Mothers having children over fourteen, able to contribute to their support, are not eligible under the law. The local board meets on the first Tuesday of every month at their room in the Court House and desire to be informed of mothers in county entitled under the law to be assisted.

The beginning of the fourth year of the administration of the Mothers' Assistance Act in Pennsylvania sees its growth extended to counties comprising 75 per cent, of the population of the State in which 1281 families are receiving aid and 4581 cases are pending. In the 30 counties organized there are 5792 possible pensioners—widows or the wives of the insane who are making a brave struggle to provide a home to rear their children under a parental roof.

These figures have just been compiled under the direction of Miss Helen Glenn, state supervisor of the Mothers' Assistance Fund, at Harrisburg, and summarize briefly the need of an ample appropriation to carry on the work which has been conducted by groups of women in 30 counties where after personal sacrifice they have attained success in the face of many obstacles.

That three-fourths of the State's population has been organized for Mothers' Assistance is due to the indefatigable efforts of Miss Glenn. To carry out the provisions of the original act by organizing more than 30 counties yet remaining will require a material increase in the appropriation. The 4581 eligible cases still pending will further increase the requirements of funds.

Farmers' Meeting.

The Adams County Agricultural Association will hold its monthly meeting in Arendtsville Town Hall Saturday afternoon, January 20th, at 2:30 o'clock. Topics: "Why do Pure-Breds Pay?" Arthur Roberts; "The Farm's Most Valuable Product," G. E. Hartman; "Farming vs. Other Occupations," O. C. Rice.

Miss Florence Alma Keefe, of near Gettysburg, died suddenly at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. A. Kemper of Freedom township, last Saturday evening at the age of 24 years. Miss Keefe, who resided in Cumberland township, about three miles west of Gettysburg, had been visiting at the home of her sister for the last week. While she had been a sufferer from tuberculosis for four years her condition during the last week was not alarming. She had gone out of the house Saturday evening when she stepped upon the porch in returning, members of the family heard a noise which resembled a fall and one of them rushed to the door. When it was opened the afflicted woman fell into the arms of her relative and lived only a few minutes. She leaves her mother, the widow of the late Adolphus Keefe, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. J. A. Kemper of Freedom township, Mrs. J. A. Wildasin of Blooming Grove, Curtis Keefe of Hanover, Clarence Keefe of York, and Dennis Keefe at home. Funeral Tuesday services by Rev. J. B. Baker, Gettysburg, interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Daniel Kitzmiller, a veteran of the Civil War, and former resident of Gettysburg, died at Cumberland, Md. His age was about 75 years. Mr. Kitzmiller was born in Gettysburg, a son of the late John and Emeline Kitzmiller. He spent his early life here, learning the trade of a shoemaker. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in Company B, 138th Pennsylvania Volunteers, and served throughout the conflict. Soon after the close of the war he moved to Cumberland, Md., where he has since resided. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. David Kitzmiller, Baltimore street. He leaves two children.

He was aged 77 years, 10 months and 6 days. He leaves his wife, one son, Theodore F. Mrs. Louise Foster Henninger, widow of John Henninger, Jr., died after an illness of nine days from pneumonia last Sunday afternoon at her home in York, at the age of 71 years. When she was stricken her left lung was rapidly affected, and it was seen that her case was hopeless. Previous to her death Mrs. Henninger seemed to gain strength and in full voice she sang a portion of an Easter cantata. Death came almost simultaneously with the end of the song. She was aged 28 years, 3 months and 25 days. She was a frequent visitor here at the home of Mrs. Evaline Holtzworth. Mrs. Henninger is survived by her little son, Clay Foster, her mother, Mrs. Charles W. Grove, and her aunt, Mrs. Mary Holtzworth, with whom she lived and who had raised her. She was a member of the Reformed Church and for years sang in the choir of that congregation. Of recent years she was the leading soprano of the choir of the First United Brethren Church. Mrs. Henninger before her marriage was prominent in musical circles and she was always generous in sharing her talents to help others.

Warner of near Silver Run, and Mrs. Peter Dull of near Union Mills.

He leaves his parents and three sisters, Carrie, Elsie and Elizabeth, also one brother, Lester. The funeral was held from his home Wednesday afternoon, interment at White Church.

Progressive School Sentiment.

Adams county is certainly entitled to feel that a progressive school sentiment prevails throughout the county.

In February Biglerville will vote on a school bond issue of $12,000 to provide for a new high school building, and it is said that the sentiment in favor of the issue is very healthy. The school directors of Franklin township had a recent meeting to decide whether they would join with Arendtsville, Menallen and Butler townships in the support of a vocational high school at Arendtsville. There is said to be much sentiment in favor of this movement and it is expected that it will be finally agreed to by all the districts interested. It is certainly a movement in the right direction.

Prof. Roy Knouse is advocating a vocational school for Littlestown and is urging a meeting of the citizens of that town and surrounding townships to take up the matter.

An effort will be made to organize a Parent-Teachers' Association of Abbotstown at the public school house, Friday evening, January 20th. All teachers, parents, patrons and friends of education are invited to attend this meeting and become members of the association. There will be no fees connected with the association, but members will be requested to take active part in the work. A program will be arranged for the evening consisting of music, addresses and organization work.

Meanwhile Gettysburg, proud seat of progressive educational institutions, and with a public school development better than the best in the county, sits shame-faced, because her non-progressive citizens hit with their votes, the absolute educational needs of the town. Yet our children and their futures are just as dear to us as those of any other community in the county.

Auto Fire Engine Has Been Paid For.

The payment to fire engine was paid January 18, and the engine is now in the hands of the fire company. The engine was purchased for $1,000 and was delivered to the fire company on January 18. The engine is a very fine one and will be a great help to the fire company. The payment was made by the fire company and the engine is now in the hands of the fire company. The engine is a very fine one and will be a great help to the fire company. The payment was made by the fire company and the engine is now in the hands of the fire company.

The boys' company from the town of York, who were bought, have treated this community with much consideration. They secured the contract fairly. It was for a machine costing over $800. They were to take the old hook and ladder apparatus in part payment for $500, did so and then made a present of it to the town. They gave the town for the same money a six cylinder car instead of a four. They have sent here every connection and missing part that did not come with the machine. They did not rush in with litigation when payment was first refused, realizing that the community and Fire Company was not back of the refusal and when it came to the settlement they did not ask interest on the money overdue for some months and permitted $100 to be withheld as against anything that might be needed to give the town what it had contracted for—a first-class automobile fire engine. It is fitting and just to this company that our people should have full knowledge of the consideration with which we have been treated by this company.

At the meeting of the Fire Company this week the following officers were elected: President, James M. McDonnell; Vice President, J. C. Hoke; Secretary, H. E. Smiley; Financial Secretary, Geo. B. Aughinbaugh; Treasurer, O. A. Lupp; Chief, A. B. Plank; 1st Assistant, J. C. Wiernan; 2nd Assistant, M. A. Miller. This is Mr. Plank's third term as chief of the organization and his choice was unanimous. Mr. McDonnell will enter his second term as president.

The annual banquet of the company will be held in the Order of Independent Americans' banquet hall on Wednesday evening, January 24. Invitations have been issued and it is expected that over 200 persons will be in attendance. The banquet committee reported that all arrangements had been completed. The banquet will commence at 7 o'clock.

A Singular Story of the Writing of a Picture Play

By F. A. MITCHEL

I am considered a literary woman, though I am really nothing more than a literary hack. Real literary persons usually go hungry. I have from the first made a fair living and, considering that I am a woman, a very good living. The reason for this is that I do my part in supplying that perennial flow of reading matter that is quaffed by the masses, whose literary taste is negligible. The readers of classic literature compared with consumers of everyday literary fodder are as one to a million. That is the reason why I, a person devoid of genius, am enabled to make a living.

My natural instincts are all for art, but unfortunately art requires education, and when I was thrown on my own resources for a living I had not the means to obtain an education. There are no schools of literature. Any one who possesses pen, ink and paper may scribble, and the pecuniary return of scribbling is not an index of the nature of the production. So I took up my pen and went to work. What I wrote seemed to interest Tom, Dick and Harry, and since Tom, Dick and Harry were in the market for something to read I began at once to make a living.

While these preliminary remarks are perhaps essential to my story, there is in them but one statement that the story is intended to bring out. I have said that my natural leanings are toward art. I know a thing of beauty instinctively, and I can conceive a thing of beauty. But never having been educated to produce anything beautiful, I am unable to do so. One day I was in a room in which I am so often to be seen. I also have done much of my writing there.

My story is a story of a woman who was born in a poor family, but who was educated in a very good school. She was a very beautiful girl, and she was very kind and generous. She was very much interested in art, and she was very much interested in literature. She was very much interested in the life of the people, and she was very much interested in the life of the world. She was very much interested in the life of the soul, and she was very much interested in the life of the body. She was very much interested in the life of the mind, and she was very much interested in the life of the heart. She was very much interested in the life of the spirit, and she was very much interested in the life of the flesh. She was very much interested in the life of the soul, and she was very much interested in the life of the body. She was very much interested in the life of the mind, and she was very much interested in the life of the heart. She was very much interested in the life of the spirit, and she was very much interested in the life of the flesh.

A few days after our arrival there I collapsed. Something seemed to give way somewhere within me, and I lost consciousness. From that time for two months I remained in an abnormal condition. A part of the time I was in bed and a part sitting up in an easy chair by a window looking out on one of the many views spread before me. From my bed I looked out upon that beautiful mountain, the Jungfrau, as it is seen from Interlaken rising out of a valley made by two nearer mountains. For months before my departure from home I had been creating stories, and they were tumbling about in my brain in confusion. After a time they shaped themselves in dreams. While lying in my bed persons were enacting parts. It seemed, on their own account, for I had no power—at least I was conscious of none—to compel them to do my bidding.

And here let me say that in fiction or plays, which are a form of fiction, a great mistake is made in supposing that the author controls his characters. It is the characters that control the author. He can force them to do his bidding, but he will spoil his story. There are grooves for the emotions as well as other things, and let him drag a character out of its groove, and it will balk at once. Then the author must get him back where he belongs or he will stand out from the naturalness of the play like a sore thumb.

During this abnormal period of mine I was conscious of Ellen Trowbridge being in the room, sometimes ministering to my wants, sometimes sitting at a table writing, sometimes at her easel sketching. These were only glimpses of her which would come and go as figures in a dream. They were not enough at times for me to have a dim consciousness of the fact that I was fortunate in having an American companion to take an interest in me.

In the early part of my illness I was trying to disentangle the many stories I had written during a long period and keep all sorts of persons from chasing one another through my brain. Later several of my stories that had been favorites with me seemed to drive out the rest, and I found myself linking them together. It was hard work, but better than having so many tumbling about my brain. Looking out on the Jungfrau, aspects appeared on its side. Then these aspects, as if drawn nearer by a telescope, became dim figures of certain characters prominent in these favorite stories. Gradually they became more distinct, and I was surprised to see that they were disposed to act like reasonable beings. And, more remarkably still, they began to work out a brand new story, composed of the several older stories that had become predominant in my brain.

This unity came from their presenting themselves to me and holding my attention till the end, then beginning at the commencement and going past again. And I noticed that every time they passed they were in a more reasonable shape than the time before. Then when they had ranged themselves and acted like human beings; when there were no more probabilities to be got rid of, they faded away, and I saw no more of them, at least not together. Now and again one of them would hob up before me—but for no purpose that I could discover—and after looking at me inquiringly, as much as to say, "Do you want any thing of me?" would disappear like the turning off of a light.

One day there came a change. I was conscious of everything about me. A clammy perspiration indicated that I was very weak. I did not see Ellen Trowbridge, but a young woman in Swiss costume was sitting near my bed making lace. I called to her, and rising quickly she came to me. I asked her what had been the matter with me. Instead of replying she ran away and called the woman of whom I rented my room. As soon as she came I asked for my American traveling companion. I was informed that she had left Interlaken a week before. I asked where she had gone and was told that she had directed her letters forwarded to America. Had she left any word for me? None except that she had been suddenly called home.

I passed a period of convalescence in sight of the beautiful Jungfrau. I remembered perfectly the characters of the stories I had concocted during my illness, moving about on the mountain side, but the combination story they had once told I could not call up. However, I made no effort at anything, either mental or physical. I simply lay waiting for strength. This came at last and since the hot season was over I went down to St. Moritz in Italy, where I finished more strength from the sea air. From there I made a brief visit to Florence and Rome and sailed from Naples to America. By the time I reached port I was perfectly restored to health.

Soon after my return I became enamored of picture plays. These plays—I refer to the sort of dramatic and artistic merit—the sort of appreciation for the drama that I had in me. One day I had an anniversary of a picture play, the drama of which was based on the life of a great man. What was the name of the play? I could not remember. I went to the library and looked up the name. I found it was "The Life of a Great Man". I had a view of the Jungfrau just as it had appeared to me in the Alps. There were the dots on its side, and when a nearer view was given they became resolved into human beings.

Here and there was unfolded the play I had dreamed. The characters did not look like those in my dreams, but they did the things I had dreamed. The play was as it appeared to me just before it passed out of my mind—that is, in a finished condition. To say that I was wonder stricken is to express feebly what I felt. I was frightened. Was I in my senses? Was not my illness returning to me? I was about to leave the theater when I was stopped by curiosity. I must see the play to the end.

When the end came I was near collapse. That night I did not sleep a wink. How had a play which had evolved itself in my brain been transferred through films to a screen in America? No solution occurred to me that had any element of probability in it. I went to see my physician and told him what had occurred. He looked at me scrutinizingly and, despite his efforts at concealment, anxiously after some thought he gave me his theory as to the cause of what I had told him. He said that there was nothing unusual in the character of my previously written stories chasing one another through my brain. A drug would do that. But when he came to account for the formation of a picture in my brain he was staggered. As to the transference of this play to a screen in America, he could only account for it on the ground that when I went to the theater I had a temporary relapse of my illness and saw what was not on the screen. He forbade me to do any literary work and to live as quietly as possible.

The true solution came in time. One day I was surprised by a call from Ellen Trowbridge. She came to make a confession. She told me that while I was lying ill at Interlaken I was much of the time delirious. While delirious I was constructing a picture play, going over and over it time and again. Presently it occurred to her to make note of what I was saying, and she then secured an outline for the play. Then it occurred to her to paint the scenes for the play, some of which were before her; others she selected. She had been deeply impressed with the play and yielded to a temptation to do a dishonorable act. Being suddenly called home, she took her notes and pictures with her and sold them to a film company. The result was the play that I had seen on the screen. She banded me $500, which she had received for her stolen property.

The scientific moral of this story is that my dramatic and artistic proclivities came out while I was in delirium. But how I was enabled to construct a play under such abnormal physical conditions is a problem for more analytical minds than mine to solve.
